

SERENGETI GREAT MIGRATION, NGORONGORO & TARANGIRE SAFARI

7 Days / 6 Nights

Serengeti Great Migration, Ngorongoro & Tarangire Safari

Duration: 7 Days / 6 Nights

Type: Private Safari

Main Focus: Wildlife

Country: Tanzania

This 5-day safari gives you front-row seats to the Great Migration, timed perfectly for the river crossing season (July to early September). You'll start with a full day in Tarangire National Park, known for its elephant herds and baobab-dotted landscapes. Then head to the Ngorongoro Crater, a UNESCO-listed wonder with abundant wildlife.

Next comes the heart of the journey — three days in Serengeti. Your first night here is spent in Central Serengeti, breaking up the long drive and letting you enjoy game viewing en route. Then, it's off to Northern Serengeti (Kogatende) for two nights during peak migration season. With a bit of luck, you'll catch the thrilling river crossings as wildebeest and zebras brave the Mara River.

Please note: To make your return journey smooth and easy, the tour includes a scenic flight back to Arusha. If you have other plans — like heading to Zanzibar or Dar es Salaam — let us know, and we'll adjust the route and help with tickets.

Day 2: Tarangire National Park

Today your safari will take place in Tarangire National Park. This is one of the most interesting places in Tanzania! The river of the same name flows through the park, where giraffes, zebras, antelopes and buffaloes come to drink. These animals attract predators, which is why a lot of lions live in Tarangire. You will definitely see them during your trip.

In the dry season, the Tarangire River becomes the only source of drinking water for many kilometers around. Because of this, large herds of elephants come to Tarangire, making Tarangire the home to the largest population of elephants in Northern Tanzania for most of the year (especially June - October and December - March). Elephants are not at all intimidated by visitors to the park, and they often come quite close to cars. This is completely safe - since elephants have no enemies in their natural nature they are naturally curious and unafraid.

Tarangire National Park is also known for its ancient baobab trees. These massive trees are larger and older than any other park in continental Africa. The scenery, accented with these signatory trees is simply stunning.

Day 3: Ngorongoro Conservation Area

Today you are going to the Legendary Ngorongoro Crater! Your day will begin early in the morning, when your guide arrives to drive you to the Ngorongoro Crater, part of the Ngorongoro Conservation Area. The Crater is somewhat reminiscent of The Lost World by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle: here you will witness tens of thousands of wild animals living in the massive crater left by a huge ancient volcano. The actual crater is relatively small, when you consider that it is home to the most variety of animals per square meter than anywhere else in the world! Here, you are sure to see a great number of animals within close proximity to one another.

The descent into the crater will take about half an hour of driving. The road passes through beautiful, lush forests with great scenery. Your safari guide will make a stop to see the 'look out' which is a place offering a stunning panoramic view of the entire crater. Contrary to popular myth, animals can go outside the caldera. However, most of them are safe and comfortable inside the caldera which provides an unlimited supply of fresh grass for grazers and easy prey for predators. Therefore, they prefer to remain in the crater t all the time.

Elephants, buffaloes, antelopes, lions, cheetahs, zebras and other African animals can be seen in Ngorongoro Crater. This is one of the few places in Africa where rhinos are found, although, remember that they are an endangered species, so there are very few of them. One animal that is absent are giraffes; you will not spot any of them in the crater because, due to the build of their bodies, including legs and long necks, they cannot walk down into the crater.

After your morning game drive around the crater, you will stop at the picnic area next to Lake Magadi for a snack and rest. This place is popular with various birds, including kites, who sometimes try to steal food right from the table! While not dangerous, at all, it is a good idea not to leave any food unattended. One of the draws of Lake Magadi are the hippos that live in the area. You're sure to enjoy watching them while you eat lunch. These huge animals stay close to the shore and often surface to get air. If you do see one walking out of the water, give it plenty of space. Due to the large number of animals and endemic plants, Ngorongoro Conservation Area is a UNESCO World Heritage Site and renowned for its natural significance in the world.

Please do not feed animals in Ngorongoro or any other parks in Tanzania. Even if you really want to treat a small bird or monkey, you should not do this - you will only harm them. Human food disrupts the natural diet of animals and can lead to their early death!

Remember, this is not just our request. This is a law which is enforced by park rangers. Any person caught feeding wildlife or violating other park rules may be fined.

Day 4: Serengeti National Park — Seronera

Today you will go to the most famous safari park in the world - Serengeti. This is one of the largest parks in Tanzania and has a large population of wildlife. Here, you are sure to see: lions, antelopes, elephants, giraffes, buffaloes and zebras. There is a good chance of spotting cheetahs, serval cats and other rare animals of the African savannah. The Serengeti is a designated UNESCO World Heritage Site, chosen because of its important ecosystem, the dense population of animals and the annual Great Migration. Serengeti was the inspiration for Disney's "Lion King" feature film, but life here is not a cartoon - it is pure, wild and beautiful. The day will take place in the central Serengeti, in a remarkably beautiful area called Seronera.

Day 5: Serengeti National Park — Kogatende

Kogatende is located in the northeastern part of Serengeti National Park. Although there are a lot of animals and stunning panoramic views, because of its remote location, tourists rarely come to this part of the park. That is why we love bringing Serengeti Nexus travelers here: it makes for an exclusive tour with few other vehicles to disturb your quiet safari. Many species of African antelopes live in Kogatende: powerful canna, small dik-diks, bearded wildebeests, kudu with their large horns and slender impalas. Your guide will share in-depth information about each of these species.

Here you will also see large herds of giraffes, zebras and buffaloes, which are attracted by the nearby Mara River for water, allowing you to get up-close photos of these animals.

Day 6: Flight out of Serengeti

Today, you'll embark on an unforgettable adventure: an airplane flight over the picturesque landscapes of Tanzania. If you'd like to have a short morning game-drive, we recommend that you have breakfast as early as possible — the guide will try to find exciting animal sightings on the way to the airstrip. Another option is to pack up without a rush, have breakfast and leave the lodge in time for your departure flight. You can choose what's best for you on the spot - the guide will accommodate your wish!
